

Mixed conditionals - Worksheet 2

Exercise 1: Conversation (Using Mixed Conditionals) – Extended

Instructions: Complete the dialogue using the correct mixed conditional form of the verbs in parentheses.

- ◆ David: I really regret not applying for that job in Spain.
 - ◆ Lisa: Yeah. If you _____ (apply), you _____ (live) in Barcelona now!
 - ◆ David: I know! If I _____ (not be) afraid of taking risks, I _____ (take) the opportunity.
 - ◆ Lisa: And if you _____ (move) there, you _____ (improve) your Spanish by now.
 - ◆ David: True. If only I _____ (listen) to my friends, I _____ (not miss) such a great chance!
 - ◆ Lisa: Well, it's not too late. If I _____ (be) you, I _____ (start) looking for another opportunity.
 - ◆ David: Maybe you're right. If I _____ (not be) so hesitant, I _____ (already send) some applications.
 - ◆ Lisa: Go for it! If you _____ (apply) today, you _____ (have) a chance to move by summer!

Exercise 2: Writing Task – Regrets & Missed Opportunities

Instructions: Write a short paragraph using at least three mixed conditional sentences. Choose one of the following topics:

1. A missed opportunity you regret (a job, a relationship, an experience, etc.).
2. Something that could have been different in your life if you had made another choice.
3. A hypothetical situation for someone else (e.g., If my friend had studied harder, she would be at university now.).

Example Answer:

If I had taken the scholarship, I would be studying in Australia right now. However, I was too scared to leave my country. If I weren't afraid of change, I would have moved last year. Now, I regret my decision because if I had gone, I might have had amazing new experiences.
